

How safe are our schools today compared to the past? Schools today are much safer than before. There is much more protective technology today. School Resource Officers also help a great deal. The guards that are at schools are always alert on campus.

First, technology is significantly more advanced than it was in the past. Security cameras in schools are always watching what is going on in and out of the school. It is almost impossible for someone to try to sneak into a school without being noticed. Also, some schools have systems where visitors must identify themselves and their business at the school before the door will unlock for them to enter. Other schools have metal detectors that make it extremely difficult for someone to try and bring a weapon to school.

Also, SROs or School Resource Officers help a great deal in keeping schools safe. They are officially certified police officers designated specifically to schools. This means that schools always have a policeman or woman on campus during school hours. They make sure that students are safe while they are in school. They make many people feel safer at school.

Third, guards are always on duty at schools. Guards are always on campus to make sure that the school is safe for students. During school they screen everyone going in and out of schools. At night they are on watch to enforce that the school is secure. Guards work very hard to assure students and teachers that they are safe at school.

If you juxtapose school safety now and in the past, schools are definitely safer in the present. Technology helps in safety. SROs protect students from harm while they are at school. Guards are always on duty to keep the school safe for students. Everyone has an important role in school safety.
